Chinese New Year

Chinese New Year is a traditional Chinese festival. We also call it 'Spring Festival'. It is on the first day of the first lunar month.

On New Year's Eve, we sit around the table and celebrate together with a reunion dinner. After dinner, my family and I usually visit the flower market and buy some beautiful flowers.

On New Year's Day, we always visit our relatives from door to door. Children are the happiest people on that day because they receive many red packets from their grandparents, parents, aunts and uncles when they say 'Happy New Year' and 'Kung Hei Fat Choy'. People also put New Year scrolls on the doors for good fortune.

Everyone is happy and excited during the Chinese New Year.
